

Hollywood Extra (Words & Music Kurt E Hoffman © 2014)

I often have recurring dreams, and you are in them,
I'm going to extremes. We'd never wish this on you or so it seemed.
You'll have this part of me, in this film I play a role, in your life.

Well I could be that lonely guy, lost in all those scenes, just passing by, and I could be in your view, and you don't notice me. I'm acting so normally, I look like I belong in this complex scene, wasn't paid it's all for free. Tragic comedy called me; I signed my name on the dotted line.
I'll be, I'll be, I'll be, I will be your Hollywood extra, Hollywood extra, Hollywood extra, extra extra read all about it. Hollywood extra,
Hollywood extra, Hollywood extra, extra extra read all about it.

This film has normal plots in life as we go underneath the knife.
No animals were abused because none were used.
And we've all been hanging out with these old films in tout.
The crew is feeding me some donuts.
And they all love you! You're a part of this crew.
When they asked if I'd deliver a clean and healthy liver, one might often make a guess, but it's an awful sticky mess. But how are my corneas?
Mention now just cuz, may need some new glasses.

I'll be, I'll be, I'll be, I'll be, I will be your Hollywood extra, Hollywood extra, Hollywood extra, extra extra read all about it. Hollywood extra, Hollywood extra, Hollywood extra, extra extra read all about it.

Alveoli's covered in tar, you quit but it's too late
These two blow bags can't donate, and it may never matter.
I could be your new cadaver and help you understand your biology classes, and I could be your best match. Hollywood extra.
